

Personal Journal Entry 1:

The last couple week we have been assigned with our team as PMs. We have also been assigned with our BAs that we are working with. I am excited to see what challenge we are going with face with the group that I am assigned with. There are going to be a lot of different challenges that we are going to face, but I think we would be able to accomplish our task. Even though the first week that we were assigned with BAs, not all member of our team was able to come to the start-up meeting because of class and work. However, we were still able to communicate with each other through Groupme application on our phone. They seem like they are very capable in doing whatever task that are thrown at them and so for us we are excited to see what happens.
