Early life [edit]

Zaydence was born in Rajkot, Gujarat. He studied at Bangalore's Sarala Birla Academy during his formative years. Srujal uses the stage name "Zaydence," which means "The rare."

Career [edit]

Zaydence began his professional career at 16 by creating mashups, writing songs, and promoting them amongst his friends and on social media and also performing in clubs at night. This eventually led him to do a cover of Justin Bieber's song "Off my face." Zaydence is a self-taught singer who has been displaying his talent in music ever since he was seven. Growing up with this singing ability, he aspired to compose his own music. After all, his writing and vocals were fostered in the bedroom itself. His voice has this smoky texture and has treble all the way to G5, and his voice is still childlike. He is now working on writing his own songs and hopes to release an album named "Feelings" soon.
